

Analyzing and Visualizing WeRateDogs

By Deepshikha Patni

Introduction

Have you ever come across a Twitter page where we can rate people's dogs with some humorous comments about the dog?

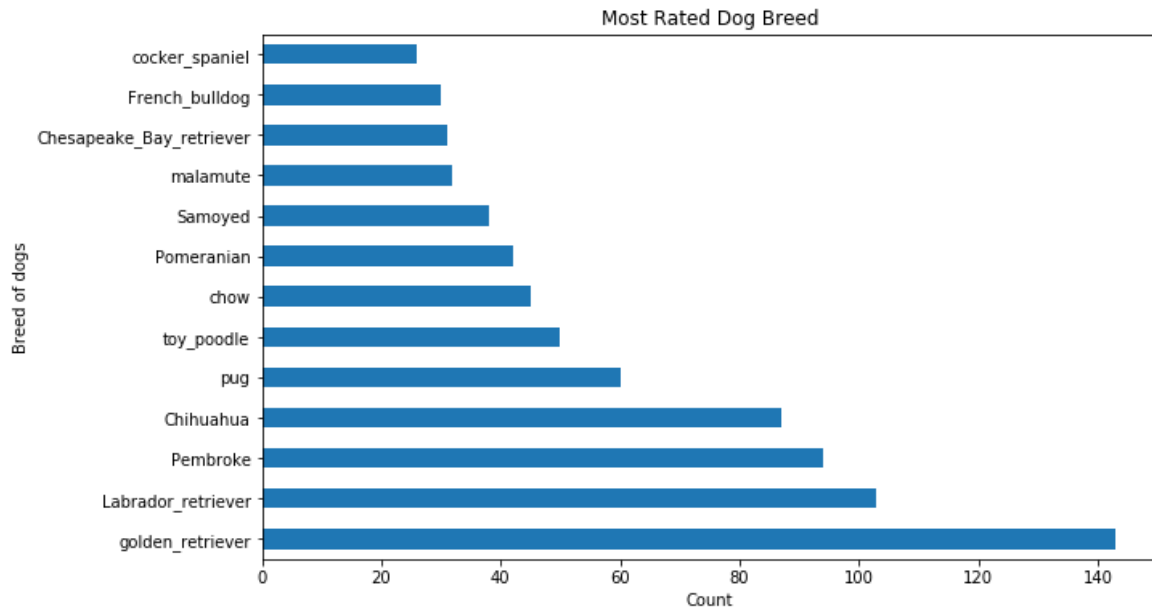

At Twitter the page started in 2015 where people are requested to send pictures of their dogs to receive tweets and ratings with a humorous comment about their dogs. Here, dogs are rated on a scale of 1 to 10, but sometimes, dogs are invariably given ratings in excess of the maximum, such as "13/10".

WeRateDogs has got over 8 million followers and has also received international media coverage. One of the most famous coverage, "They're good dogs, Brent", which became one of the biggest memes of 2016.

Through these tweets and ratings, I found some interesting insights and analysis for WeRateDogs like which is the most popular dog breed on Twitter, which dog type has the highest average rating, etc. These types of questions and insights about it are answered below.

Most trending Dog Breed

WeRateDogs has more than 7000+ tweets. After analyzing these tweets, I found Golden Retriever was the most rated dog with more than 140 ratings followed by Labrador Retriever.

But do you know who might have received the highest average rating?

Average Ratings

From the analysis of about 1500+ WeRateDogs tweets and ratings, we found that Bouvier_des_Flandres received the highest average rating of about 1.3 counts while Japanese Spaniel received the lowest average rating of only 0.5

“Lucy” name stands out!

There are many lovable names of Dogs out of which Lucy, Charlie & Cooper are the most popular ones trending on Twitter.

Conclusion

Also according to analysis, tweets are declining starting at year 2016 with a steady decrease there after.

WeRateDogs should consider ways and measures to increase the user traffic which is gradually declining like focusing on dog breeds those are popular among users and breeds that require some attention along with tweets and ratings.
